Still/Moving: From Borders to Ballots and the Footprints We Leave

PPCC's Art Gallery, Dance, and Theatre Departments come together to create this thought-provoking visual art exhibit, live dance performance, and one-act play. Spaces are limited, social distancing and masks required, and online reservations are required.

The Gallery exhibit explores headline events, including the complexities of immigration and racism, the legacy of Ruth Bader Ginsburg, and the memory of those lost to COVID-19 along with an athletic dance performance.

Later, the Theatre Department performs "Aria Da Capo." This absurd play deals with themes of the haves and have-nots, the silliness and sadness of dividing humanity with arbitrary borders, and how we impulsively look away from unpleasantness.
